
ISEL'17

ISEL is a student driven initiative since late 2016 which aims to generate collaboration networks between under and postgraduate students from engineering schools internationally. This seminar is inspired and based on Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile's ING2030 program, whose purpose is to encourage, among others, research, innovation, entrepreneurship and leadership.

Its first version, to be celebrated this September, makes a formal invitation to every student with a remarkable participation or special distinction in any of the four aforementioned subjects.

The attendees will share their own experiences and knowledge in order to generate a well established network.
